

Katherine Garcia

Senior Vice President, Applications Services,
HP Enterprise Services
Hewlett-Packard Company

Katherine Garcia is senior vice president of Applications Services for HP Enterprise Services. Her organization serves clients from all industries in more than 170 countries, applying innovation to modernize and manage their applications portfolios to enhance business results.

Garcia is a recognized leader in the IT services industry. Prior to joining HP, she held several senior executive positions at IBM, Loral and Lockheed Martin. Most recently, Garcia was general manager, IBM Global Business Services, Growth Markets-MTN (a global telecommunications company). In this role, she was responsible for creating and executing strategic plans to initiate business operations across Africa, in addition to supporting MTN's business.

During her IBM career, Garcia held a variety of senior management positions that enabled her to gain a global perspective and develop expertise in high-growth markets. Previously, Garcia held the position of president of Lockheed Martin Naval Electronics and Surveillance Systems.

Garcia holds a bachelor's degree in mathematics and economics with distinguished honors from Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va. She also holds an honorary doctorate in electrical engineering from the Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken, N.J. She completed Seminar XXI, International Studies from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass.

Garcia has been a trustee at Stevens Institute of Technology, a board member of the Webb Institute's College of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering, and chairman of the Navy Research Advisory Board. She also served on the Board of Governors of the IBM Academy of Technology.

